On behalf of the American Indian College Fund, it's an honor to support the upcoming production, For the Generations: A Native American Music Special. As we're all aware, education is strength and like our nation's 32 tribal colleges, we support efforts to improve academic success as well as keeping Native cultures alive by teaching tribal customs and heritage.

For years, Painted Sky has wowed audiences with their profound performances that blend dance, music, and theater elements, both traditional and contemporary. Extending these concepts to television is a natural transition and we anticipate the content will have a great amount of intellectual value.

Painted Sky and Oregon Public Broadcasting are educating us all with this production that will show how Native music has progressed over the years. We're very excited about this wonderful program and all that it will bring.

Sincerely,
